Plaszów // Plaszów

The Plaszów forced labor camp was established by the Germans in late 1942, on the site of two Jewish cemeteries just outside Kraków. In 1944 the camp was used to hold Polish prisoners of war, and later to hold Jewish prisoners. The camp held up to 25,000 prisoners in very poor conditions, with no food, no shelter, and no medical care. The camp was run by the German SS, and the prisoners were subjected to brutal treatment and forced labor. The camp was destroyed by the Germans in January 1945. The camp was one of the most notorious of the Nazi concentration camps, and it is now a memorial to the victims of the Holocaust.

Prisoners who tried to escape from the camp, although most were quickly caught. An attempt was made by the prisoners to escape in September 1942, but it failed. The camp was one of the most notorious of the Nazi concentration camps, and it is now a memorial to the victims of the Holocaust.

“SIR,—I have the honour to acquaint you, for the information of his Excellency the LORD LIEUTENANT, that, previous to my leaving Castlebar, on Saturday the 22nd inst., I had ordered Lord PORTARLINGTON, with the regiment under his command, 40 of the 24th Light Dragoons, Captain O’HARA’S, Captain WYNNE’S and Captain CROFTON’S Corps of Yeomanry, to meet me at Ballina at ten o’clock on Sunday morning, from Sligo. I also ordered the Armagh militia, consisting of above 300 men, under Major ACHESSON to proceed from Foxford and co-operate with me at the same hour. I marched with the Roxburgh Light Dragoons, 300 of the Downshire, the Kerry Regiment, the Prince of Wales’s Fencibles, and two curricule guns, with the Tyrawley Cavalry, by the Barhague Road, and ordered Colonel FRASER with 300 of his regiment to march from Newport, where I had detached him on Friday, in order, if possible, to cut off the retreat of the Rebels.
